EVENT 1: What Does The Future Of Work Look Like?

Sponsored by: The IDB Family Association

Over time, technology has dramatically changed the business landscape, the nature of work, and the way people operate. Some jobs are lost and many more are created. Now, we are witnessing the Fourth Industrial Revolution (Industry 4.0). According to research by Oxford University, just in the US, Industry 4.0 and automation are expected to replace up to 50% of existing jobs by 2030. The good news is that it will also create numerous new ones. It is estimated that up to 85% of the jobs that will be created in 2030 don't exist today! The big question is: how do we remain relevant in times of technological transformation? How do we compete in times of automation? What are the skills needed to thrive in Industry 4.0?

Keynote Speaker:

Enrique Rubio is an Electronic Engineer with an Executive Master's in Public Administration from Maxwell School of Syracuse University. Prior to coming to the US, Enrique worked in the telecommunications sector as a Senior Project Engineer for Telefonica and later as CEO at Management Consultants; a firm focused on human resources and corporate social responsibility services in Venezuela. Among his clients were the Coca-Cola Company, Del Monte, and General Mills. He currently works as a HR specialist at the Inter-American Development Bank and is the founder of Hacking HR, a forum for the discussion of the intersection of technology and HR.

The keynote presentation will be followed by an interactive panel discussion and Q&A.
